NUMBER 14

CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Anniversary—Prominent Couple in Marion Have Grand Time Surrounded by Friends.

Monday of this week marked the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Judge and Mrs. J. A. Moore, and in observance of the notable occasion a family reunion was held here. Though the children of this union have been widely scattered since reaching the age of responsibility all that are living, together with every one of the grandchildren, were present. There were three vacant places, these being those of Margaret and William, who died in infancy, and Robert M. Moore who was killed accidentally about 2 years ago.

An especially honored guest was Mrs. Julia Bourland, of Madisonville, the venerable step mother of Mrs. Moore. In addition to the immediate family there were several relatives and a number of close friends, also present.

While the various members of the family gathered here Saturday and they spent the time most happily together, the real celebration came on Monday of course. This was in form of a reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Moore, in East Marion, where a substantial, varied and appetizing dinner was served. All of this took place out of doors—large tables were spread under the shade trees, chairs, and settees filled the spacious yard and the reunited family and their friends mingled in joyous intercourse for several hours. The chef d'oeuvre of the dinner was the barbecued pig, lamb and kid, to prepare which Uncle 'Lige' McCain, the colored expert in this line, had spent a sleepless and diligent night. There were side dishes of many kinds and to make it all complete and to fill all stomachs to the last limit, ices and cakes were served as dessert.

Dr. Arthur Mather made a brief talk before returning thanks, and in a most eloquent manner he spoke of the long and useful lives of Judge and Mrs. Moore, and prayed that many years of health and activity might yet be granted to them.

Specially enjoyable features of the occasion were the singing of the quartette composed of Messrs. James Travis, Virgil and Homer Moore and Chas. Moore, and the music rendered by the orchestra composed of Misses Ina Price, Madeline Jenkins, Mira Dixon, Lucile Pope, Linda Jenkins and Louise Clement, and Messrs. Ira Sutherland, Geo. R. Orme, and Homer Moore.

In all of this region there is no more widely popular couple than are Judge and Mrs. Moore. While the people generally could not meet them personally and express their sentiments, there was no one who was cognizant of observance of their anniversary but who had the warmest and most felicitous feelings for them.

Judge Moore was born in this county on October 25th, 1836.

His education was secured in the county schools, but he made the most of his limited opportunities by wide reading, digesting and assimilating what he read. On September 25, 1861 he was married to Miss Martha Bourland, the pretty and talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bourland, of this county. Their married life has been typical of the love of man and woman—that of the man being a constant, true devotion that spoke for itself; that of the woman being the sincere, steady, all absorbing, self denying love that gives to the marriage relation that purity and beauty which makes it the ideal existence of every rightly constituted human being. Through the fifty long years which they have spent together, sharing alike the joys that came to them and each cheerfully helping to bear the other's burdens and sorrows, Judge and Mrs. Moore have been blessed in many ways. Raising a large family they have been vouchsafed the pleasure of seeing them grow from dependent babyhood to lusty youth and develop into strong men and women who all have now married and have taken their places in the world as active, useful citizens, and have seen them progress steadily in the christian life in which they were reared.

To Marion and Crittenden Co., this couple have ever been a source of good and helpfulness. Coming to Marion from the country in 1884, Judge Moore entered the practice of law and has been honored by the people with the office of representative in the state legislature in 1884 and was successfully elected for four terms, or 16 years, as county judge. Now he is the efficient city attorney.

During all his life Judge Moore has been prominently identified with public affairs and has al-

Animals Will Be Moved From Morganfield, To The Cincinnati Zoo.

Announcement has been made by Attorney Arthur Bensinger of Louisville that the complicated litigation relative to the disposition of "Robinson's Famous Show," the circus stranded at Morganfield, Ky., has been settled, and the property will be bought in by Mr. Daniel Robinson, who has decided to winter the animals in the Zoological Gardens in Cincinnati.

A conference between the attorneys representing all interests was held at Mr. Bensinger's office last night, and a proposition of $35,000, cash was submitted by Mr. Robinson. An agreement to accept this offer without delay was signed by the Columbia Trust Company, as receiver, and by all the attorneys in the case representing owners and creditors.

At the urgent request of the citizens of Morganfield, the animals will be moved at once to Cincinnati.

ways been active in supporting those projects and men which promised best for the welfare of the county.

Through it all Mrs. Moore has been his chief adviser, his helpmate in all that the term implies and his solace and comfort when clouds hung lowest. So it is that everybody has the best of wishes for this loved and lovable couple, and the universal prayer is that they may be spared to their family and to the community for years to come.

The immediate family as they gathered here Monday, is as follows—Judge and Mrs. James A. Moore; Mrs. Julia Bourland, of Madisonville, step-mother of Mrs. Moore; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Daughtry, of this county, the latter a sister to Judge Moore; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Moore, of Madisonville, and children, William Edward and Lawrence; Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Moore, of Owensboro, and son, Hunter; Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bacon, of Hopkinsville; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Moore, of Marion, and sons, Virgil, Homer and Neville; Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Moore, of Marion, and children, Elzie, Mildred, Ruth, Catherine, Newton, Fannie and Hickman; Mr. and Mrs. John A. Moore, of Marion, and children, Owen, Harry, Evalyn, Alfred, and James Edward; Mr. and Mrs. Levi Cook, of Marion, and daughter, Elizabeth; the children of Robert M. Moore, deceased, Hebert, Lucile, Selma, Sylvan and Carrie, who now make their home here with their grandparents.

WANTS DAMAGES

Sues Hotelkeeper For Allowing Him to Miss Train

Madisonville, Ky., Sept. 26.—Not because he didn't get off at Buffalo, but because he didn't get away from Dawson, J. U. Snyder, principal of the Marion high school, filed suit in the circuit court today against E. T. Harrel, a hotelkeeper of Dawson.

Snyder alleges that he received a telegram that his mother was dying in Whitley county. He went to Princeton, arriving there in the evening, and found that he could not get a train until the next morning. He went to Dawson and told the hotel people to wake him up in time for the early train. This was not done, and Snyder wants $2,000 because Harrel let him sleep and he missed the train.

Stanley Will Plead For Former Kentuckian.

Laporte, Ind., Sept., 29.—Congressman Stanley, who defended Newton Grady, a former Kentuckian, when the latter was tried for murder in the circuit court at Mt. Vernon, Ind., will appear before the Indiana Board of pardons at Indianapolis the coming week to plead for clemency for the prisoner, whose health has now become serious, tuberculosis being feared.

Grady who was a horseman, shot and killed a man in the st. of Mt. Vernon with whom he had some difference, and when Grady was tried he pleaded self-defense. He has served about five years in the Michigan City prison.

WE GET ONE

Three Routes For Jeff-Davis Way From Hopkinsville.

No Trouble To Get Financial Backers For Model Highway.

Fully twenty-six hundred business men, farmers, doctors, lawyers, judges, magistrates, and altruistic citizens, comprising the very flower of West Kentucky's manhood, representing the civic leaders of Crittenden, Livingston, McCracken, Calloway, Graves, Marshall, Caldwell, Trigg, Ballard, Lyon, Christian, Todd and Logan counties with scattered representations from other counties, yesterday went into a Good Roads convention at the Kentucky theatre roused to a fervor never seen in a purely business affair, and rarely ever seen even in the more surcharged religious revivals. Hard-headed cold-blooded business men were willing to fight their neighbors who lived across the county line. Fiscal courts, with every member present held called sessions perched on the back of opera chairs while the convention raged about them and voted qualified appropriations to attract through their counties the Jefferson Davis Highway. Every delegation was set determinedly on getting the road.

And best of all every county got what it wanted.

Instead of the Jefferson Davis Highway passing west from Hopkinsville by way of one of the four proposed routes, it will fork to two routes at Hopkinsville and fork again at Princeton.

The lower Jefferson Davis Way will run from the Davis Farm to Hopkinsville, to Gracey, to Cadiz, to Golden Pond, to Old Calloway landing, to Murray, to Mayfield, and thence to Paducah.

The upper Jefferson Davis Way will start from the Farm and run over a common road to Hopkinsville where it will take a route thence to Princeton, to Marion, to Salem, to Smithland, to Livingston's point and into Paducah.

The General Lyon Branch of the Jefferson Davis Way will fork from the upper route at Princeton, run thence to Eddyville, Kuttawa, McEuen landing to Benton, and thence into Paducah.

Converging at Paducah, the three branches will extend from Paducah via the Woodville road into Ballard county and will be carried then by the citizens of that county to the Mississippi river at Old Fort Jefferson.

East from the Jefferson Davis Farm the road will run to Elkton and from there to Russellville. One fork there will run to Franklin and join the Nashville Highway, and another fork will run north and join the Lincoln Way at Bowling Green.

These routes will be uniform. The roads will be constructed of a like material, of a like grade, of a like width and base, and General Bennett A. Young will plant a catalpa tree every fifty feet along each.

Surely West Kentucky has come into its own again with fervor rarely approached, and determined that instead of one route for the Jefferson Davis Highway from Hopkinsville, three branches centering at Paducah shall be built, each of a standard width and grade.

The appropriations to cover costs were oversubscribed from the floor, the fiscal courts of three counties going into a called session perched on the back of opera chairs in the middle of a crowded convention hall.

SPECIAL BARGAIN

Don't Miss It.

MARION BOY IS HIGHLY HONORED

When the Kentucky State University Senior Class of 1912, elected their officers last Wednesday they unanimously elected N. G. Rochester, an educational student from Marion as Valedictorian.

It seems to have become a custom to elect our boys as Valedictorians of the classes there as Mr. Rochester's election makes three out of the last four years. In 1909 the class had as their Valedictorian V. Y. Moore, and the class of 1911 had as their Valedictorian H. A. Babb of Marion also. So you see with the selection of Mr. Rochester this year the University recognizes the excellent work being done by our High School. No other High School in the State has such a record.

Mr. Rochester's selection did not come as a surprise for he has already established his reputation as an orator and like Mr. Moore was the class orator in his Junior year. This is a distinction and an honor to the Marion School and should help the State University in western Kentucky. Gray Rochester is a universal favorite here and we all are glad to see his talent recognized.
